I hate to eav it but inquitably I have to: there's no further news on who the new owners of Commeders might be. The poly significant event in recent weeks is that the Commodore UK team have out forward a management buyout bid. Strangely enough though, there appears to be less nervousness about the situation in the software industry this month - could this be confidence in the success of the UK bid.or confidence in some other potential buver? There are certainly enough bids on the table to make things interesting though So come on guys, herry up! The bets are on

TEAM TALK

Late one night, after a particularly tough day in the office, the CU Crew decided to compete telling horrer stories. To be honest, none of them were particularly good but the one thing that did come out that fateful evening was the fact that, to a man (and woman), your fave magazine team are a very phobib by nuch.
